Forward

Near the end of March I was about to start work on the next edition of News & Ale. How things have changed over the last few weeks. With the closure of the pubs it has been impractical to produce a printed copy so this is a special online edition of News & Ale. It has been created to highlight the many pubs and breweries that are still providing a service to the public such as providing take-aways and deliveries direct to people's homes. We have included all of the pubs and breweries that we know about but if your pub or brewery is not included then please email the editor of this newsletter and it will be added to the list. This edition also includes details of our online socials. So, keep safe and look forward to when we can all meet again in a pub drinking a tasty pint of real ale.

CAMRA in Lockdown

It seems there are two sorts of people at the moment, those who are stupidly busy and those who are finding themselves with lots of free time. With pubs all being closed you would think that CAMRA campaigning would be firmly in the second category, but in fact it feels far more like it is in the first.

One of the biggest issues at the moment is the ongoing failure of many of the big pub companies to support their publicans, by demanding the continuing payment of full rent during the Covid-19 crisis. This is particularly galling when many licencee's agreement are tied directly to turnover, which of course is pretty well zero in most cases. Basically if the pub doesn't have any turnover it shouldn't be paying rent. Some pub companies, such as Fuller's and Hall & Woodhouse, who both have pubs locally, have cancelled rents while the crisis continues but other notably the larger companies, Ei Group, Greene King, Star Pubs and Bars, Marston's and Punch are demanding rents be paid in full or at best deferring some payments, which is just building up problems for the future. This is why Surrey/Hants Borders CAMRA fully support the #Save Pubs, Cancel Rents campaign. Check out the posts by local landlady Kerrie Whittingham of the Ship, Farnborough that are on Twitter and Facebook to see the real impact these corporate decisions are having.

We have launched the Pulling Together campaign that is supporting local beer, pubs and cider during this crisis

This is open to everyone, not just CAMRA members and provides information nationwide about how pubs, clubs, breweries and taprooms are fighting for their survival against the coronavirus. Many are finding different and innovative ways to help their business weather the crisis. Details of all the pubs and breweries locally that are offering additional services can be found elsewhere in this newsletter. National information can be found here <https://camra.org.uk/pullingtogether/brewery-initiatives/>

Building on this CAMRA has also launched a new app Brew 2 You, which is a new app where you can buy beer and cider directly from pubs, breweries and cider producers nationwide.

More information about this can be found on the Brew2You Website

<https://brew2you.co.uk/>

Being sociable is a big part of CAMRA and pub going in general. In response to this CAMRA has launched the Red OnLion, a new virtual pub launched to tackle loneliness during lockdown. Beer and cider drinkers as well as regular pub-goers can get together for a pint and a chat to help tackle social isolation felt during the closure of all our pubs. There is a main bar area, and you can also create or book a table to set up video conferencing with friends. There are also presentations, events such as quizzes and expert-led tutored tastings, so join in here: <https://theredonlion.co.uk/>

Locally we set up a weekly virtual social at the Lock Inn on Skype before the Red OnLion opened so we have stayed there. This is held every Wednesday evening at 8pm, simply follow this link <https://join.skype.com/oCEjaXyGfVnb>

Keep The White Lion Roaring!

We make no bones about focussing our pub campaigning in this article on the White Lion, Aldershot. As highlighted in the previous issue the freehold of the pub was put up for sale in November for £275,000, with the owner willing to sell the pub as a going concern, but equally would probably find it difficult to turn down any reasonable offer.

Alarmed at the potential imminent loss of a fantastic pub and local asset, CAMRA, working with the Aldershot Civic Society and local councillors, helped organise a public meeting in January. The meeting was attended by over 140 people and galvanised into action by Mark Dodds a nationally renowned advocate and campaigner for preserving and enhancing the social value of pubs. From this initial action a Campaign Group has been formed of local people and despite the constraints caused by the coronavirus pandemic are working tirelessly to put together a comprehensive plan to buy and operate the pub for the wider community of eastern Aldershot. If this can be achieved it will mean that the pub would be both owned and controlled by a significant number of people from within the community. As a result, local folk would have a real stake in the pub and the opportunity to have a say in how it is run. The White Lion can then become a facility which truly reflects the wants and needs of the local area whilst still being a viable business.

They started out by circulating a questionnaire to provide the evidence needed to demonstrate support from local people to keep the White Lion going as a traditional English local pub and develop it to offer other community activities outside usual pub opening hours.

As well as providing a wealth of good ideas for future activities that could take place in the White Lion, this evidence was instrumental in securing a bursary of £2,500 from the “More than a Pub” programme operated by the Plunkett Foundation to help with start-up costs.

Of course good ideas and enthusiasm will all count for nothing without money to buy the pub. One way this will be done is through selling shares in the White Lion and it has been agreed that these will be offered at a price of £20 per share to make participation affordable for all with a maximum shareholding likely to be about £15,000. Whilst the Covid-19 situation has delayed a formal share issue, potential investors have been invited to make a pledge in support of the pub. This gives an indication as to how much money might be raised and opens doors to securing the additional funding that will be required; to date over £43,000 has been pledged

Another issue that arose was the expiry of the 6-month moratorium on receiving formal offers to buy the pub, other than from the local community. That element of the Asset of Community Value (ACV) designation expired in mid-May and hence Aldershot Community Pub Limited has formally advised the owner of the pub that they wish to buy the White Lion, once they have raised the necessary capital and had the opportunity to carry out the necessary inspections and surveys. The community clearly wishes to see itself as a serious bidder and despite the ACV no longer being in place, negotiations can continue once the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic becomes clearer.

Although the White Lion remains closed during the covid-19 pandemic, this doesn't mean nothing is happening. The pub quiz continues to be held virtually and the pub was decked out for the recent VE Day celebrations. In addition you can buy 'Keep The White Lion Roaring!' T-Shirts for £12, see the campaign website for details.

www.whitelionaldershot.co.uk

The campaign is also active on Facebook and Twitter so check out their pages for the latest news and in particular when the share offer goes live and finally get down and visit the White Lion and experience the pub for yourself as soon as it is safe to do so.

Pub awards

Surrey/Hants Borders Branch of CAMRA is delighted to announce the winners of our Pub, Cider Pub and Club of the Year competitions.

Branch Pub of the Year – Alfred Free House

For the second year running Surrey Hants/Borders Branch has a new recipient of our Branch Pub of the Year. The top pub in 2020 is a first time winner of the award, the Alfred Free House, Upper Hale near Farnham. This is a friendly family run, side street local tucked away in a leafy residential area down a very narrow road. The public bar is popular with locals and visitors alike and good conversation is the order of the day. What really caught the judges eye was the unusual and welcome choice of real ales.

With over 200 pubs to choose from, it wasn't an easy task to pick a winner, but Alfred Free House is a worthy winner. The award isn't just about the excellent range of beers, but also about their high quality as well as the warm and friendly atmosphere at the pub. The Branch will be presenting a certificate to mark the success when the pub reopens.

Branch Club of the Year – Railway and Athletic Club, Woking

Unlike Alfred Free House, the Branch Club of the Year is no stranger to the top place as 2020 is the 6th successive year the club has won the award. This friendly and lively social club is tucked away near Victoria Arch, serving an ever-changing selection of ales, often from local breweries, normally three at a time. One side of the bar is sports oriented, with darts, (free to play) pool and Sky Sports, while the other side is quieter. CAMRA members are welcome at all times, simply show a current CAMRA membership card or copy of the current Good Beer Guide, in which the Club is an entry.

Branch Cider & Perry Pub of the Year – Star Inn, Godalming

For the 8th time in succession the Branch Cider Pub of the Year is the Star, Godalming. The Star shines as a beacon supporting real cider, when few other pubs in the area do, whilst still selling an excellent range of real ales too.

The Star has then gone on to represent the branch and has been judged CAMRA Regional Cider Pub (Surrey & Hampshire) for a record-breaking 6 years in a row.

The pub is especially renowned for its selection of ciders and perries, with around six from an ever changing range, sourced by landlord, Andy Mounsey, directly from the National Cider Farm in Sussex. The Star usually stocks a draft mead and there is also a separate Stable Cider Bar in the garden which serves a different range of ciders together with a single real ale. This bar is normally open Thursday to Sunday. Again our presentation of this award scheduled for May, is postponed but watch this space for an announcement of a new date.

The pub has featured in all but one of CAMRAs Good Beer Guides since 2007. As the Branches new Cider Rep I am itching to organise the presentation of their fully deserved award to Andy as soon as it is possible. I am sure Andy and his staff will be as fully welcoming as they usually are and fingers crossed we can present it on a sunny day in his wonderful garden at the rear of the pub.

During the lockdown the Star continues to offer cider on a takeaway and local delivery basis in 2 & 4 pint containers. They are also underlining their community credentials by fund raising for the Meath Home locally.

For all the latest information about the pub including what draught ciders, beers and food they have for sale to take away please see their website :-

The Grumpy Old Man experiences the delights of lockdown and praises his virtuousness

I have become so incredibly virtuous that I have truly astounded myself. I had my last pint of beer about March the 22nd and not a drop of the 'evil' brew has crossed my lips since and I am sure that if I carried on like this I would be in the queue to become a bishop or a Temperance Minister. It is true that the odd drop of merlot or pinot noir has been experienced, but we will ignore that as we will with the fact that I never drink beer at home in the first place. Why let these uncomfortable facts stand in the way of basking in my own self-righteousness. And then, all my illusions were shattered by someone called Martin Luther who had something to do with the Protestant Reformation who said this about beer – “Whoever drinks beer, he is quick to sleep; whoever sleeps long does not sin; whoever does not sin enters Heaven! Thus let us drink beer”. Oh dear me with all my virtuousness counting for nothing.

Inevitably, there have been some concerns expressed by the medical profession with regard to all the health implications, especially renal, of excessive drinking during the lockdown. The logic would appear to be the need to fill time, although you would have thought that would also apply to smoking, but 400,000 have been attempting to give up. Certainly I can recall supermarket trollies with more cans and bottles of beer/wine

(and toilet rolls) than food just in case Armageddon might break out, but I suppose a killer pandemic is potentially just that! It is too easy to make moral judgements and let us be charitable as it is perfectly possible that they were buying for a family of 15! I came across this extract from Lorna Doone written in 1869 where one of the characters expresses this view about his beer drinking – “Only a pint at breakfast time and a pint and a half at 11 o’clock and a quart or so at dinner, and then no more until the afternoon, and half a gallon at supper time. No one can object to that”. To the contrary, I think very many people would object to that. However, looking at those trollies people would be drinking something very similar.

There will come a time of course when the pubs will reopen, but I fear that it will be too late for some with inevitable casualties and the same will also apply to breweries. Like most people I often muse on WHEN will be that first pint, WHERE it will be drunk and WHAT it might be. And now for an uncomfortable thought given my abstinence what will it taste like? Will my system fail to recognise the taste and automatically reject it as something alien and unpleasant? Alternatively, if ‘absence makes the heart grow fonder’, the experience may well prove to be the most enjoyable pint ever which is the other extreme. However, what would happen if it was a 'bad' pint and would abstinence be able to allow for that fact? What would normally be unacceptable could prove to be very enjoyable under the circumstances, but absolutely dreadful by any other standards! Tim Martin of Wetherspoon was loudly trumpeting the fact that he would be opening some pubs in June, but on what basis goodness knows although we are likely to hear why he was so right in the house magazine in due course. It is also very likely the ones to reopen first are more likely to be the restaurant style pubs with their tablecloths and chalk boards etc. which would be of zero interest to me. In late May the expectation is that some pubs might be reopening in July and especially those with outside facilities, but who knows?

I think we will have to accept that the pub of the future is going to be a radically different place, at least in the short term. Rules and stipulations will abound and it is perfectly feasible that on entry someone will stick one of these 'guns' on your forehead, or in your ear, to check your temperature. There will have to be some sort of queuing with one way systems and almost with traffic lights and roundabouts to halt or proceed and especially with regard to the toilets. Sanitisers will be all over the place with much tutting if people fail to use them. Standing up will probably not be allowed and tables just for two people will need to be pre-booked for a given time and vacated similarly representing a form of beer rationing by time. Outside drinking will have to be separated by two metres on large tables which almost means shouting at the other person and presumably a third person will necessitate a second table and even more shouting. With everyone doing this on many other tables a quiet retreat to the garden becomes anything but. Some tables will probably be reserved for diners and how do children fit in to these arrangements? (Preferably in a segregated cage?) Presumably, there will be separated smoking and non-smoking areas to add to the confusion and who is to 'police' all of this which will inevitably break down as the drinks flow. People returning to the bar, new arrivals as tables get vacated, diners, children and those accessing toilets are bound to make more and more contact with each other as the day wears on. It's all going to be very frenetic until things settle down.

My pessimism tells me that just for the sake of a beer I am not so sure I can tolerate too much of this nonsense which probably means that my virtuousness will persist a little longer. I would like to think that I could wait in the hope of a return to greater normality, but accept that could be a long wait.

Poetry in Lockdown

I wandered lonely as a cloud,
through Molesey East and West.
Thought it wouldn't take long,
but how I was wrong.
As I searched for a pint of best.

Shut was the Bell,
The Europa as well,
The Poyntz, the Kings Arms and
Mute Swan.
The Lamb and the Roebuck?
At both there was no luck.
The search it went on and on.

Fifty pubs more,
my feet were so sore,
and still not a real ale in sight.
COVID had won.
Nothing more to be done.
So decided to call it a night.

I trudged slowly back home,
feeling very alone.
It was eerily quiet on the roads.
Despite my pub book,
wherever I looked,
the pubs were still bloomin' well closed.

It was quarter to twelve back in Molesey.
The family had gone up to bed.
Then a knock on the door,
which I opened and saw,
a bloke with a wand, who then said.

"I know I look hairy,
but I am the beer fairy",
I believed every word that he said.
For the sight of the day ,
I'm delighted to say,
was the pint of real ale on his head

My jaw hit the floor.
I could have wished for no more.
He smiled and he said with much glee,
"You can't beat real beer".
"It brings unrivalled great cheer,
and best of all this one's on me".

So the moral of this tale,
is don't give up on real ale,
and even if you do have a cough.
Just be contrary,
believe in the beer fairy,
and tell the virus to go to hell!
